Germans Facing Major Defeat in Bryansk Citadel

Capture of Major Stronghold Looms

By JAMES M. LONG

LONDON, Tuesday, Sept. 14 (AP)—The Red army has laid siege to the ancient citadel of Bryansk on the west bank of the Desna river after plunging over the bodies of 2,000 Germans to reach the east bank and cut four of the five trunk railways feeding that Axis stronghold, Moscow disclosed early today.

A Soviet communiqué telling of the smash through the mine-filled forests east of Bryansk foreshadowed the early capture of that pivot of the Axis Central and Southern fronts.

"Our troops have come up to the town of Bryansk," said the communiqué recorded by the Soviet monitor.

The bulletin added that Gen. M. M. Popov's troops had overrun the vital railway network on the Eastern side of the Desna moat, seizing prisoners and equipment. The Germans were unable to take with them in their flight to the high west bank.

Swarm over Ukraine

While Popov's troops were storming through Bryansk's outskirts, the communiqué said, other Russian armies still were racing through the Ukraine toward Kiev and the Dnieper river.

The advance was so swift that at the rail station at Kruti, a few miles east of Nezhin in the Northern Ukraine a whole trainload of German reserves going to the front was caught.

"The blow delivered by our troops was so powerful that German reinforcements arriving at this station did not even have time to get out of their train," the communiqué said. "The majority of Germans on the train were wiped out and the rest were taken prisoner."

South of Bakhmach in the Ukraine the remnants of four German divisions, originally approximately 60,000 men, were declared wiped out in another Soviet encirclement.

Kill 1,500 Fleeing Nazis

Aside from the heavy German reverses south of Bakhmach and before Bryansk, the Russians said their troops overhauled and cut down 1,500 of the enemy soldiers fleeing from the Donets basin west of Stalino, and killed hundreds more in other sectors.

But the normal assault on Bryansk, pivot of Germany's battered Central and southern fronts, was the high point of the Russian offensive. "The successful lunge made it likely that Bryansk would be the scene of the next great Russian victory to keep Moscow's batteries booming their triumphal salutes."

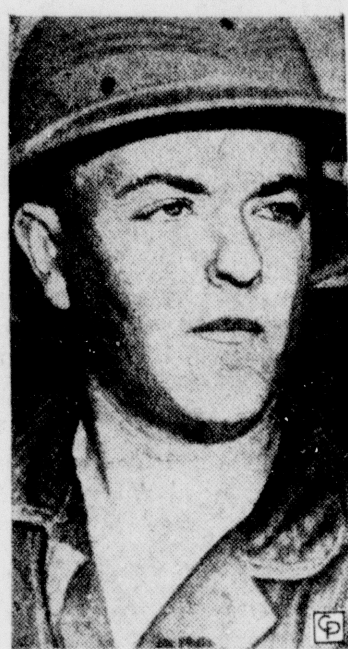

The hard-pressed Germans already are nearly encircled, and have only one railway artery to depend upon. That is the line leading northwest to Smolensk, and Russian troops probably will snap it shortly. One Russian unit is only a few miles from that line.

While the Bryansk army held the main spotlight other Russian armies rapidly clipped their way toward Kiev, Ukraine capital on the middle Dnieper, and Zaporozhe and Dnepropetrovsk, on the lower end of the river, to add to a total bag of nearly 350 villages freed during the day.

Rail Cities Threatened

OPA Announces Drive To Lower Cost of Living

Partial Success Already Reported

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (AP)—A new effort by the Office of Price Administration to cut down the nation's grocery bill was announced tonight, along with a report saying that the cost of city living has been whittled down one-half to one percent for the third straight monthly decline.

In a "progress report" on his reorganization of OPA, General Manager Chester Bowles announced also the abolition of OPA's oft-criticized legal department and the launching of a new compliance program which bans "snooping and coercion."

Predicts Lower Prices

"A new OPA program which is now in the final stages will decrease the cost of living an additional 2.3 per cent," Bowles' report said. "The program will mean lower prices to American housewives on apples, oranges, onions, potatoes, lard, vegetable oil and peanut butter."

The cost to the government of the new program—which is designed to carry the country almost half-way back to the September, 1943, cost-of-living level—will be approximately $100,000,000 in funds already available. Bowles said this will be spent in transportation subsidies and government purchase-and-resale operations. On peanut butter and perhaps lard, rollback subsidies will be used to the extent allowed by Congress.

Cheaper Apples Soon

The new apple campaign, due within a week or so, will average seven to ten per cent under present retail prices, Bowles said; orange ceilings, due by the end of the month, will effect a 9.7-cents-a-pound yearly average price, instead of 11.2 cents. Later are to come onions, to be cut from eight cents to about six, and then the other foods, with proportionate reductions.

Two other major food policies were listed by Bowles in his report and at a press conference accompanying its issuance:

1. An appeal to Congress for stabilization of milk prices through subsidy or the payment of production (Continued on Page 7, Col. 4)

Berlin Reports Restoration of Duce to Power

Mussolini Given Direct Command

By WILLIAM SMITH WHITE

LONDON, Tuesday, Sept. 14 (AP)—The Berlin radio said early today that a Fascist national government had been founded in the name of Benito Mussolini and now was under Mussolini's direct command.

This announcement served as a climax to a day-long series of recitations yesterday on the semi-official radio—"The Rescue and Liberation of Benito Mussolini"—which was told, re-told and heavily embroidered by the German radio.

The station had shifted with delight to this subject after weeks of labored explanations of Nazi defeats in Tunisia, Russia, Sicily and Italy.

Mussolini in "Big City"

The Berlin radio yesterday had said Mussolini had been secure since Sunday in a "big city," which was not identified, but might be Berlin. The broadcast said that Mussolini, "by the orders of Marshal Badoglio, had been refused newspapers and other news sources" and, after sleeping uninterrupted for many hours, began to brush up on the news today.

"The liberators took Il Duce to the nearest German airfield," it was said, and moved him to the city.

With glacial Berlin script writers told how dazed German parachute troops and elite guards had scooped the Duce out from under the noses of his captors, saved him from being a lowly "paw" of the British, Americans and Badoglio government and set him on the road again to lead his nation back to Axis loyalty.

Adolf's Own Plan

But the crowning feature of the story, as contrived in Berlin was that the kidnapping was made possible through the personal friendship and Fascist brotherhood of Adolf Hitler, who waxed heavily sentimental over the former Duce in his speech last Friday. The German propagandists said it was understood that Hitler himself prepared the plan for freeing his friend and gave the orders for carrying it out.

One of the first acts of Mussolini, they said, was to telephone the Fuehrer, and they added, "it is difficult to express in words the feelings which animated Hitler and Il Duce during this historic conversation."

The Berlin radio said Mussolini's family also had been freed from internment by "SS (elite guard) commandos," that some of his top henchmen had been rescued, and that Vittorio Mussolini, eldest son of the Italian dictator, was among those arriving in Germany.

All in One Piece

Niggardly of details, presumably to give the proper spice of suspense, Berlin broadcasts added only that Mussolini's guards had orders to shoot him if an attempt were made to free him, but that he got away without a scratch.

This whole story was treated here with the utmost calm. The British foreign office said authoritatively, with dry emphasis (Continued on Page 7, Col. 5)

Weather Holds Up Bombing Attacks

LONDON, Sept. 13 (AP)—While unfavorable weather still held Allied heavy bombers aground, RAF fighters crossed the channel before dark tonight in the direction of Boulogne and Calais, France.

American heavy bombers had not left their bases since the climax of an eight-day, round-the-clock assault upon the continent last Thursday and the RAF's heavy bombers had made no major raid since the Munich assault of a week ago.

Baltimore To Be Bombed Today

BALTIMORE, Sept. 13 (AP)—Baltimore will be bombed for half an hour tomorrow, but the bombs will be thousands of "Back the Attack" leaflets and a number of orders for $25 war bonds.

This aerial encouragement for the third war loan was announced today by Hooper S. Miles, state chairman of the Maryland War Finance committee. He said the bond orders were donated by merchants and industrial plants in the city.

Japanese Army Quits Salamaua, Takes to Hills

Pincers on Lae Slowly Closing

By C. YATES McDANIEL

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Tuesday, Sept. 14 (AP)—A fast disintegrating Japanese army has abandoned Salamaua, New Guinea, leaving behind valuable war equipment to Australians hotly pursuing them northward into the mountains, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today.

The air and sea anchorage base is the first place of prewar importance to be retaken from the enemy in the Southwest Pacific.

Salamaua was overrun Sunday, a day after Australians of a pioneer unit swam the rain-swollen Francisco river and occupied the big airfield two miles southwest of the town.

No Live Japs Found

A large Australian force moved cautiously into the town's harbor section built on an isthmus connecting the mainland with Cape Parisee in the Huon gulf. The caution was unnecessary. The Japanese who had survived Allied bombings during a campaign of seven and a half months had fled to ridges northwest of the town, beginning a flight toward Lae.

Eighteen miles above Salamaua, the pincers on Lae were tightened, aided by air blows.

Allied bombers, making a round-trip flight of more than 2,000 miles, heavily bombed the waterfront and barracks at Makassar, Dutch Celebes.

In a night attack, Liberators dropped twenty-seven tons of explosives and incendiaries. Fires raged among buildings and warehouses near the Juliana and Wilhelmshafen wharves, in an oil storage tank area and in the center of military barracks as well as the Mandal airfield. One Liberator failed to return.

Below Salamaua, Japanese dive-bombers attacked the harbor of Allied-held Morobe, New Guinea, but today's communiqué said the raiders caused only minor damage.

Raid Base at Vila

In the Solomons, American bombers started fires and explosions in a new raid on the isolated Japanese air base of Vila, Kolombangara.

The pattern followed by the Allies thus far in their reconquest of New Guinea was disclosed to newsmen today by Gen. Sir Thomas Blamey.

The general traced the pattern of reconquest on a map and stressed that ground forces were covered throughout by superior air power and by amphibious resources at decisive moments.

After the Japanese Papuan army was driven back across the Owen Stanley mountains last fall and destroyed in the Buna sector in January the Allied command was faced with the problem of how to strike at Lae, the center of the enemy's bases in Northeastern New Guinea.

Salamaua was the enemy-held point nearest to the Allied advanced position at Wau, 28 miles to the southwest. The Japanese in Salamaua were always a potential danger to the Allied hold on Central and Southeastern New Guinea. In the Japanese scheme, however, Salamaua was manned primarily as an outpost of Lae, eighteen miles to the northwest.

During the fifteen-day inventory, the boards will suspend new classifications. Non-fathers who have been erroneously placed in occu-

More Italian Warships Now Held by Allies

Additional Ships Reach Safe Ports

By EDWARD D. BALL

LONDON, Sept. 13 (AP)—The liquidation of the Italian fleet, which started the war as the world's largest, was all but complete tonight, freeing Allied naval power from the Mediterranean for action in the Pacific against the Japanese.

The "doughty old battleship Giulio Cesare" steamed into Malta today to join four other surrendered battleships, leaving only one more unaccounted for. The Roma, one of Italy's newest and largest, was sunk by German planes.

The battleship still unreported is believed to be either the Impero, scheduled for completion in 1943 but, according to London authorities, possibly not yet completed and either at Trieste or Pola, or the battleship Cavour. The 23,000-ton Cavour was torpedoed by the British at Taranto in 1940. Later she was reported to have been refloated, but was regarded by the British as a total loss for war purposes.

Cesare Leads Procession

Into Valletta harbor the 23,000-ton Giulio Cesare led a procession of four destroyers, a seaplane carrier and a number of submarines. They anchored under Malta's guns alongside a fleet ranging from capital ships on down which gave themselves up earlier.

From Spain's Balearic Islands in the Western Mediterranean came the news that two Italian destroyers, put to sea again after landing wounded crewmen and that other warships, including a cruiser and destroyers and gunboats, had been interned by Spanish authorities after oversteering their twenty-four hours as provided by international law.

These were in addition to others which were reported to have been scuttled by their crews after reaching the Balearics.

At the other end of the Mediterranean another warship, its size disclosed, but in with the black pennant.

AMERICANS BOMB NORTH END OF JAPANESE ISLAND CHAIN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (AP)—

Japan's homeground has again felt the blast of American bombs, with the fourth raid on the Paramushiro islands area at the North end of the island chain which makes up Nippon.

The navy reported that a formation of heavy and medium army bombers battered enemy shipping and ground installations Sept. 13 (Paramushiro time), fighting meanwhile an air battle with upwards of twenty-five enemy fighters planes and plunging through heavy anti-aircraft fire.

When the fifty-minute engagement was over ten enemy fighters, and probably three more, had been shot down.

Four American planes lost. Four United States planes, the navy said, "are known to have been lost due to enemy action, and six others failed to return."

This last reference to failure to return suggested they had been lost on a long road home, perhaps to Attu island in the Aleutians, 720 miles east.

In addition to "numerous hits" on ground installations, the navy said, a transport was fired and left in a sinking condition, another transport damaged and hits scored on three cargo vessels, one of which blew up.

Indicating that at least part of the attack was at low level despite the anti-aircraft fire, the communiqué reported that numerous small craft were strafed by the United States planes.

Previous bombing raids on the islands were carried out July 10, 12 and 19.

Earlier today the Japan radio had told of the latest raid yesterday and in an effort to discount it said that land damages were extremely light and that while only one Japanese plane was lost many American planes were downed.

Italians Battle Nazis in Italy

Broadcast Reports Widespread Attacks

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 (AP)—Widespread fighting between Italians and Germans in Italy was reported in radio broadcasts today and a Nazi proclamation from Rome said "serious clashes have taken place within the city."

The Nazi-operated Rome radio, in a broadcast reported by the U. S. Foreign Broadcast Intelligence Service, said that the fights in Rome were between German troops and "irresponsible criminal elements," and appealed to the people to "resume your occupations with discipline."

Italian authorities under the orders of the commandant of Rome, Gen. Count Carlo Calvi Di Bergolo, are to see under their responsibility that all arms are surrendered at once," declared the proclamation.

"The people of Rome are requested to support Count Calvi in the discipline."

Casualties Heavy As Germans Fight In Desperation

Yanks Meet Stiff Tank Opposition

By NOLAN NORGAARD

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Sept. 13 (AP)—The most violent battle of the whole Mediterranean campaign raged tonight around the American bridgehead at Salerno within fifteen miles of Mount Vesuvius, while in extreme Southern Italy the British captured Crotone after a thirty-mile advance and beat up the Adriatic coast from Brindisi toward Bari.

Both sides were throwing tanks and reinforcements prodigally into the crucial Salerno combat, described in latest frontline dispatches as hotter than any fought in the African or Sicilian campaigns. The combat raged out its fifth day and both sides had suffered heavy casualties.

The Germans were ensconced in high ground commanding the whole Allied bridgehead with their artillery.

"Very Heavy Fighting"

"Very heavy fighting continues in the area of the Fifth army at Salerno," Gen. Eisenhower's communiqué said before noon. "The Germans are resisting desperately our determined thrusts to break through their positions."

The Americans with their British units not only held doggedly to their hard-won bridgehead twenty air miles below the great metropolis of Naples, but managed to push into the mountains. Much fighting was 4,000 feet above the sea. The enemy was pushing reserves toward the battle despite day and night pummeling from sky-ruling Allied air fleets, which were challenged by large German plane formations. Despite the mounting fury of the fight, its climax was not in sight.

Nazi Tanks in Action

Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's men encountered stiff tank opposition. The ferocity of the German defense attested to the importance the enemy attached to the battle and suggested that the Nazis were trying to hold open at all costs an escape route for their scattered forces in the southern third of Italy which Gen. Montgomery's army was herding northward at an accelerated pace.

Montgomery's closest elements were 140 miles below Salerno and were racing ahead without even making contact with the enemy. The British appeared intent upon reaching the Salerno area at the earliest possible moment to shut the jaws of a trap clutching at enemy forces between them and the American bridgehead.

At last reports, the Eighth was well north of the bottleneck on the Italian toe between the gulfs of Etna and Squillace on the west coast.

Crotone Captured

Another arm swiftly negotiated the thirty miles between Catanzaro and Crotone on the East coast of the toe and captured the fairly important harbor at Crotone intact. Crotone, a town of about 10,000 has chemical works and is an important railway junction. It is 110 miles from the extreme tip of Italy.

At headquarters, it was learned that all enemy troops in the Italian heel south of the Taranto-Brindisi road had been cleared out. Possession of the heel gave the Allies many first-class airbases within short range of the Salerno area. These likewise provided potential bases from which Flying Fortresses could easily pound all of Italy to the Brenner Pass, the Ploesti oil fields of Rumania and scores of other inviting targets.

Quick Showdown On Man Power Seems Likely

Senate Expected To Act This Week

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (AP)—A quick showdown on the army's man power needs was urged by legislative leaders tonight on the eve of the reconvening of Congress after its longest holiday in four years.

With the drafting of fathers shaping up as one of the hottest issues of the impending session, Senate Majority Leader Barkley of Kentucky urged that army and navy chiefs be called to tell "what they need, how much they need and why they need it."

His proposal was backed up by Senator Taft (R-Ohio) and, in part, by House Minority Leader Martin of Massachusetts, who advocated Congressional review of the entire manpower problem to "see just what we have and what we need."

Martin's Position

"I don't think the public would object to the induction of fathers if the need for them was proven," said Martin.

Rep. Kilday (D-Tex.) asserted the man power review ought to take up the question of the army's size to determine whether its demands for men "are reasonable and necessary." Kilday, however, expressed reluctance to put a congressional ceiling on the strength of the armed forces because it might affect the army's strategy.

With the deadline for the drafting of fathers only three weeks away, Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) already has served notice that he will press for immediate action to postpone their induction until Jan. 1.

Barkley Seeks Delay

Barkley, however, expressed hope of obtaining an agreement with Wheeler to put off consideration of the bill until Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, and Ad-

Graft, Political Crimes, Force Many To Flee from Vichy Posts

By CHARLES S. FOLTZ

MADRID, Sept. 13 (AP)—A welter of graft, political crimes and general corruption among persons high in the pro-Nazi Vichy French regime and other collaborationist circles is shown in the twice-censored French newspapers arriving here daily.

Only the barest outline, however, is able to get into the newspapers, censored both by the Vichy authorities and the Germans, but the details are supplied by reports seeping over the border.

The web of pro-German and pro-Vichy employees—prefects, mayors, local Quislings and minor officials—is said to be crumbling under the triple threat of the exposure of their graft, assassination and plain fear that the German domination which has been supporting them was nearing its end.

During the last few days, a number of Vichy officials of all categories and in all parts of France have simply vanished, some leaving explanatory notes behind them. But none left forwarding addresses.

Many went to the Northern provinces, dispatches from France (Continued on Page 7, Col. 3)

David Gaspar Bacon, Masked Man Of Movies, Is Victim of Stabbing

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 13 (AP)—Actor David Gaspar Bacon, masked marvel of the movies, died last night, victim of a stabbing as weird and mysterious as any of the situations portrayed in the innumerable film thrillers in which he had starred.

The scion of a Boston political family, who told his studio he attended school with Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., and that he often had been a guest at the White House and Hyde Park, died in a bean field in suburban Venice, sobbing to a passerby, "please help me."

Clad in blue denim shorts and returning from a swim, Bacon lost control of his small, English-built automobile. It bounced over the curb and stopped. He climbed out and collapsed. He died of a stab wound in the back, gasping his plea to Wayne Powell, a passerby.

Witnesses said Bacon's car wavered along Washington boulevard before leaving the curb. One woman said she saw a black-haired man in the vehicle beside the driver, while a service station attendant half mile west of the bean field said a man and a woman, besides the driver, were in the car (Continued on Page 7, Col. 3)

WOMEN MOBILIZE IN KANSAS TO SAVE ITS BIG WHEAT CROP

By MALVINA STEPHENSON
Central Press Correspondent
TOPEKA, Kan.—Thanks to the little woman who usually punches a typewriter, teaches school, or welds a broom, Kansas will maintain its national reputation as a great wheat-producing state.

These soldiers of production, garbed in shorts and gay-colored slacks, come from many parts of the country and every walk of life. Some are high school girls and young wives who live in the neighborhood. Others are war widows and co-eds from as far distant as the northeast United States.

State officials estimate that at least one-third of the 1943 Kansas harvest is being handled by feminine recruits, substituting for the able-bodied men who have gone off to war. Fifteen hundred women, without farm connections, have been enrolled in the Women's Victory Farm Corps, sponsored by the Kansas Farm Labor commission.

War Widows Help
The volunteer farmerettes have been doing a variety of chores, ranging from household replacements to actual field work. Inside the home, they share kitchen work and look after the children, while the more experienced farm woman does her stint in the field. They also have demonstrated their ability at driving trucks or tractors, and operating the binder.

Improving the scenery as well as clearing the wheat fields on a Reno county, Kansas, farm are two comely war widows who first became friends at Fort Knox, Ky., where their husbands were working for Army commissions. Mrs. Bruce Vran, the wife of a Pretty Prairie, Kan., banker, is alternating farm work with school teaching for the duration, and Mrs. Vail Watson, New Yorker (from Downsville) who had never been west before, is proving equally proficient on the food front.

After their husbands sailed for North Africa, the two young wives decided to get into the battle of production. "Vee" Vran, certainly no Amazon in appearance, weighs less than 100 pounds, but swinks a mean shovel, loading wheat from a combine. Mrs. Watson, curvaceous and more the athlete, in shorts and halter, and bare-footed, drives the tractor most of the time, while Mrs. Vran hauls the wheat to market.

Long, Hard Day
And a twelve-hour stretch is all

after a day or two. Everyone else in town has been kidding me, and expected the girls to play out in a hurry."

But, they didn't. Just like thousands of their sisters who have swung in to save the wheat of Kansas, they have gone down the line and have done a good job.

Take, for instance the daughter of Jacob Lepp, who operates a farm northeast of Hutchinson, Kan. Miss Marie Lepp is a graduate nurse, just fresh from training school, but her vacation was spent in her father's wheat fields. She hauled wheat and helped shock both wheat and oats.

May Do Double Duty
"Women drive tractors and wheat trucks just as well as men," assures County Commissioner Dan Forker. He says he saw more women at the elevator when he was delivering his wheat than men.

Also in the Hutchinson, Kan., vicinity, Miss Vera Singleton, an office secretary, went home and not only did a full turn in the fields but handled the cooking chores.

Many Kansas farm wives are doing double duty, both in the home and in the field.

Typical Schedule
Here is the daily schedule for a typical farm woman: Up at 5:30 or 6 o'clock in the morning, she gets breakfast, gathers vegetables in the garden, and looks after the chickens before her appearance in the harvest field at 9:30. Operating the binder until noon, she returns to the kitchen, gets dinner for the hands, and is back at the field by 1:30 for a hard afternoon's work.

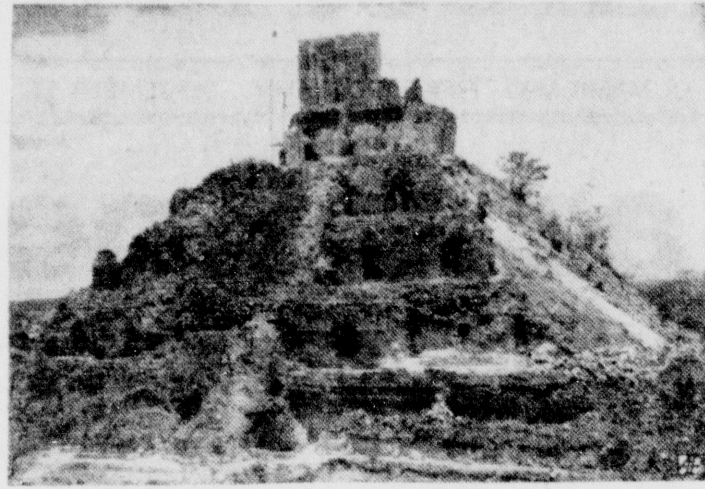

There is supper to get, plus the evening chores, before she can go to bed to rest up and start all over again.

If the middle west is to be counted the nation's bread basket, then the woman in the field and in the kitchen must get a big slice of the credit.

The northern shrike, an American bird, impales its victims on a thorn or fence barb before eating.

Starlings will sometimes strip one cherry tree in an orchard, leaving all other trees unmolested.

PRE-HISTORIC SKYSCRAPER

PYRAMID has been reconstructed in remains of ancient city

By THEODORE E. EDIGER

AP Features

MEXICO CITY — A five-story pyramid believed to have been built nearly 1,000 years ago by the Maya Indians has just been reconstructed in the jungles of tropical Mexico, where it recently was discovered.

The jungle "skyscraper" is part of a prehistoric city called Etzna, that was uncovered when workers cleared off jungle growths in the state of Campeche to plant castor beans for exportation to the United States.

Alberto Ruz Lhuillier, head of the archaeological expedition, reported in Mexico City that the tall structure is located on one side of the ancient city's principal square, and that on the other three sides there are rooms with high arched roofs.

The new forest archaeological zone, located eight miles from the nearest village and 38 miles from Campeche, the state capital, is more than a mile long, indicating that Etzna was a good-sized city. Ruz Lhuillier reported. Excavation and restoration of ruins is continuing.

The pyramid, called "Principal Temple" or "Five-Story Building" by the scientists, has rooms and corridors with windows on each floor, and a towering place of worship on top. On the stairways 80 hieroglyphics, still undeciphered, were found. Inside the stone structure, a large sculptured tiger head, an assortment of ceramic offerings, several copper rattles, and jade beads were discovered.

In another part of the buried city, the archaeologists found a well-preserved court where the residents played ball. Near this court, nine inscriptions were located, including one that was deciphered as corresponding to the date 672 A.D. There also were many stone serpent figures nearby.

Some of the inscriptions and figures found at Etzna, Ruz Lhuillier said, resemble those at the famous Chichen Itza archaeological zone, in Yucatan, an adjoining state. Chichen Itza, and probably Etzna, was a center of the mysterious Maya civilization that flourished before the European discovery of America.

Since the first of the year, fourteen states have adopted legislation permitting life insurance companies to make use of modern mortality tables in computing rates and cash values.

SOUTHERN STATES
FARM LIFE

THE midsummer drouth which burned up the pastures and fired the corn in a large part of Southern States territory took a toll of about $50,000,000. To make up for this serious loss of grass and grain, farmers will need to fertilize more heavily than ever this fall to produce more feed.

Fortunately nitrogen, which was so scarce last fall—is now on the plentiful side. Farmers can now use nitrogen fertilizer on small grains without restriction.

Fertilizing heavily this fall means more grain to harvest next summer and a bigger crop to follow. Southern States 4-12-4 is a good fertilizer for small grains and for the grass and clover seeded with the grain. Like all Southern States fertilizers, it is open formula.

Farm machinery and tools that stand out in the rain and snow and storm all winter are apt to be pretty sorry looking next spring. The place for them this winter is in the barn or shed where they're protected. Before you put your machinery and equipment away for the winter, wipe off the dirt and rust and give them a good coat of Southern States Implement Paint.

Now that you drive your car only when you absolutely have to, the amount of sludge that gets into your motor oil is apt to increase. To keep your motor in top-notch condition during the winter at least three oil changes should be made—in October, December and February, for instance. It's good insurance to get a supply of Unico Motor Oil from your Southern States Service Agency—and to change your oil regularly this winter.

IT'S A FACT!
That the Baltimore Fertilizer Plant of Southern States Cooperative is the largest fertilizer factory in the world owned and operated by farmers.

ASK ADAM

WATKINS E. WRIGHT

ADAM NORTH, young bachelor who recently converted an old Linville buggy factory into a war plant, becomes a "fill-in" stand-by for the town's party givers, among them being

SUSAN POTTER, whose husband, Bill, has lately been breaking evening dates to "negotiate" a real estate deal with

ALICIA CARTER, a wily, flirtatious widow, Adam, unknowingly, is loved by her secretary,

RUTH MOOREHOUSE, who at present is having difficulty dissuading the affections of

JACK VINTON, a mechanic in the plant, Adam, not being aware of Ruth's feelings, is just becoming intrigued with BRENDA LEIGH, who is now enjoying an extended vacation in Linville, which she left several years ago to launch a journalistic career in New York.

CHAPTER NINE

At almost the same moment that Susan and Adam were continuing their talk about the cafeteria in Adam's office, Bill Potter was starting one with Ken Randolph, the man who had taken him over to Elmwood—only their talk had to do with Alicia Carter's property.

"There's enough material in Mrs. Carter's two big barns and those other outhouses to make at least four bungalows," Bill said. "We can start with those without having to bother about lumber bills. I mean, if we buy the property, we've that much ahead."

"I know," said Randolph. "But what worries me is the post-war slump."

"How do you know there's going to be one?" said Bill. "There always is," Randolph replied. "An era of wild prosperity, and then—out goes the bottom." He bit the end off a fat cigar, and threw the piece into the wastepaper basket. "The workers are all making good money now and have the home-buying urge. But suppose the war ended next month? We'd be left high and dry with a lot of half-paid-for cottages on our hands. The workers can start buying homes all right, now that they have money in their socks. But if the bottom dropped out of war production and you thought he had a right to pay me a compliment." She freed herself and returned back to the stove. "Go get ready to eat. Everything will be on the table by the time you finish."

"But about this date of yours," said Bill. "You mean your going out this evening?"

"Yes," said Susan. "With Adam North?" Bill asked quickly.

"Certainly not."

"Then with whom?"

"Nobody," said Susan. "I'm going to run over to Mrs. Platt's to discuss plans for an entertainment. She wants Brenda and me to help her draw up the plans, and—"

"What sort of entertainment?" said Bill.

"Oh, I forgot you weren't here at bridge the other night. She talked about it then—the night you were with Alicia Carter." Susan paused to pull aside the percolator. "Mrs. Platt's going to use the play Peter and another boy wrote—put it on to raise money for the USO. I may even have to play a part in it."

"I see," said Bill, relieved. "By the way, how did the luncheon go today—at the factory cafeteria?"

"Splendidly!" said Susan. "I'm going to draw up a number of experimental menus for Adam to look over. And I may spend several hours a day at the factory sort of organizing."

"Organizing what?"

"The cafeteria, of course," Susan took a look in the oven and then turned back. "What's in that package?"

"Candy," said Bill. "And there are some roses in the living room. Better hurry and put them in water."

"Are you celebrating something?"

Bill laughed. "I hope I am," he said. "My exit from the doghouse."

He put his arm around Susan, "Listen, honey, let's get back on the old basis."

"Oh, Bill, darling!" Susan flung her arms about Bill's neck and clung to him. "I've been hoping and praying you would say something like that. Kiss me!" Bill did so.

"Gosh, sweetheart," he said. "you make me feel downright honey-moonish. He held her close for a moment, noting that she was using a new perfume that was nothing less than alluring. "I think this week-end will end the Alicia Carter affair, and then—"

"Affair?" said Susan, startled.

"Don't get the wrong idea," said Bill quickly. "I was referring to her real estate." He then told her about his talk with Ken Randolph. "So, you see, Susan, all's well that ends ditto."

"But it's not really ended yet," said Susan doubtfully.

"Well, you can trust me that it will end—and satisfactorily for all concerned. And now," Bill continued, "about this deal of yours with Adam North."

"What about it?"

"Are you going through with it?"

"I think so. It'll be fun."

"But what about me?"

"You'll not be neglected, darling."

"Maybe not, but ought you to be spending so much time with Adam?"

"Why not? You never seemed to mind."

"I know," said Bill. He turned to go. "But that was before you—er—got the new hair-do, and those earrings, to say nothing of those knock-out drops you're using for perfume."

"Goodness, Bill, what a way to talk! My new perfume is something very special and expensive. Brenda chose it for me."

"Nevertheless, many a stronger man than Adam North has been knocked silly by such stuff," said Bill. Then in the doorway he paused and called back. "Why in heck doesn't Brenda try it on him herself?"

He hurried off, leaving Susan gazing after him.

Yes, good whiskey is getting scarce...

But an all rye whiskey is almost out of this world!

Not one bottle of Rye Whiskey in a hundred is an authentic ALL Rye Whiskey. (Most are mixtures of rye, corn and other grains.)

But here in the famous limestone country, here in Maryland where so many famous Rye Whiskies are made, nearly everybody drinks B.P.R. when they can get it. It was the leading whiskey here when you could take your choice of all the fine whiskies!

Although it's sale is now regulated to make it last seven years (until more can be dis-

And remember it's 100 proof... so you get more drinks per bottle... with just as much flavor as if you'd used a bigger jigger!

And that's important now-days! Remember the initials B. P. R. for Baltimore Pure Rye Distilling Company.

Now and AFTER the war, B. P. R. will always stand for authentic aged ALL Rye Whiskey... the kind that made Maryland famous. You can tell B. P. R. by its steel engraved bank-note label!

A Poorly-Imvised Law Needing Revision

TESTIMONY by Maurice Karker, chairman of the Price Adjustment Board of the War department, an experienced business man before he took the job of applying a poorly-imvised statute for the army, has impressed the need for modification of the war contracts renegotiation law.

Three good reasons obtain for early revision of this law. One is that it measures the reasonableness of contract net earnings before taxes, at which point they are not profits and many stand for actual losses. Another is that it requires downward revision of contract prices regarded by government representatives as excessive but does not authorize any upward revisions of contract prices which prove too low to cover costs, and it is being so interpreted. The third reason is that it fails to authorize, and so impliedly forbids, recognition of the expense of recovering plants to peacetime usefulness as a war production cost.

These aspects of the law have an important bearing on the postwar ability of concerns engaged in war production to return to civilian production and thus provide the employment that will be needed when the war ends. That, indeed, is an important consideration.

Circle-Cutting Job Is at Hand

FROM THE BEGINNING this has been a war of encirclement, with the job of the United Nations to close and contract the circles and the aim of the Axis to break out. What Churchill meant last spring by his "end of the beginning" statement was that the Allies at last had the circles closed. From now on the task is to shrink the circles.

That applies to the fighting in Europe and in the Pacific. When the Nazis made their thrust into the Caucasus, they were trying to break out of the circle. Rommel in Egypt had hopes of encompassing the Mediterranean and making an Allied encirclement impossible.

In their attacks on Australia, India, Midway, Hawaii and the Aleutians, the Japs were trying the same circle-breaking strategy. It has failed at all points. Neither enemy apparently has the strength to attempt further break-outs. Both are occupied now with the effort to hold the present circles, without success.

The time to begin cutting into the circles is almost here. America and Britain can accomplish this in Europe by invading from the Balkans and from Britain, lopping off a large arc of the Hitler orb and pressing him back toward his starting point. In the Pacific there are many possibilities of severing large chunks of the irregular circle within which the Japs are entrenched. Future Allied offensive operations there will have that aim.

History Instruction In the Schools

ANSWERS are being sought for two important questions concerning the teaching of history by the Committee on American History in the Schools and Colleges. They are:

How much do Americans know about the history of this country?

If they do not remember much of what they were taught in school, what is the reason?

The committee hopes to learn what constitutes the best method of teaching history to achieve practical results. Its finds may result in changes in the system of instruction in history.

The committee will seek answers to its questions through a test to be given in sixty selected centers. Instead of a factual test, such as the New York Times conducted, it will stress understanding, significance and trends of historical events. The test will be given to groups of students, business men, labor unions and women's clubs, seeking to sample a true cross-section of American education.

One teacher thinks history teaching has been too much concerned with names, dates and too many different persons. "We ought to know more about what history means," he says.

Perhaps one fault with methods of teaching history is that they have concentrated upon cramming facts into young minds when a better method might have been to endeavor to implant in student minds a genuine liking for the subject.

History may be too big a subject to teach in the schools, but unless one receives during his school term an introduction to history which excites his interest, he is unlikely to demonstrate, in his adult life, an appreciation of the spirational and directive qualities which the study of history possesses.

Another Year Yet In the Pacific

TWENTY THOUSAND JAPANESE TROOPS are caught in a trap in the Lae-Salamaua sector in New Guinea and apparently it is now only a matter of time until the Japanese are choked out of that area and the American forces in the Southwest Pacific will mark up one more major advance in their campaign to drive the Japs back and back.

Allied fighting power has been steadily increasing in the Pacific and the combined forces of Australians and Americans have teamed up perfectly in the campaign to clear out the approaches to Australia. When this is done, Gen. MacArthur will probably turn his attention toward the recapture of the Netherlands East Indies, a tremendous task.

Now, more than ever, Americans must not delude themselves over the enormity of the job which is ahead in the Far East. The Japanese still hold all of the East Indies, the Philippines, Malaya, Thailand, and they still occupy huge sections of China. The offensive action from Chinese bases has been stepped up, but Japan still holds the rivers, the railroads and vast areas of China's best crop lands.

No matter when peace comes in Europe, there is at the very least a full year of war ahead after that in the Pacific. Americans owe it to themselves to tighten their belts for the long pull.

Christmas Mail For Servicemen

THE WARNING that Christmas gifts for persons in the army who are serving abroad must be mailed between September 15 and October 15, and that gifts for navy personnel must be forwarded between September 15 and November 1, means that early shopping is imperative. Acquiring the traditional Christmas spirit may be difficult when the weather is hot and the holiday far distant, but if the parcels are to be delivered on time, the mailing dates announced for overseas cannot be ignored.

The stipulation that service men must request certain articles before they may be shipped has been waived for the holiday season. Other restrictions limit the weight of parcels to five pounds, a length of fifteen inches or a measurement of thirty-six inches for length and girth combined. Perishable matter will be refused. Food, clothing, liquids and inflammable materials are barred and anything that might damage other articles in the mails is prohibited.

Merchants have begun to display gifts suitable for overseas mailing. The stores have the official information relative to postal requirements and are glad to cooperate with the public in getting the Christmas parcels under way in time to insure their prompt delivery.

The sooner Prime Minister Churchill goes home the sooner he will report to the House of Commons and let the American people know what was decided.

After the New Dealers get their magazine pieces written they don't have a lot of time left for official duties.

Hitler still has Danzig but even he ought to be beginning to wonder whether it was worth the price.

America might as well decide that if it is to feed the world there can be no second helpings.

Is Your Body YOU?

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Hold out your right hand and examine it. You know it well, because you've had it all your life. There's the scar on the thumb where you cut yourself with a butcher knife. There's the twisted finger that was twisted until you die because you mashed it with a hammer long ago. There's yellow stain on the index finger and there are the lines on the palm that were born with you.

Look yourself all over. You know yourself very well indeed. Your right shoulder is higher than your left. Your left thigh is scarred from a burn of long ago. Three vaccination marks stand out on your left arm. Your left foot is narrower than your right. . . . You'd know yourself among a million without seeing your finger prints. Of course you would because you have been living with this body for many years and you know it.

But is this body YOU? Some people think it is. Some learned men insist that this body you see and touch and know so well is all there is to you. . . . They argue most persuasively on the subject. They speak of glands that determine your personality, they show us with charts and figures and clinical reports on how this body that we carry everywhere influences everything that we think and do. And sometimes they come close to convincing us that we are merely talking and walking dolls—and no more!

But deep down inside we don't believe that's all we are. There are times when we surprise ourselves, when we are shocked or shamed by what we do. We stand off and look at ourselves and say: "Did I do that? Can THIS be me?" Sometimes we do better than we thought we could, sometimes we do worse. We feel often that inside of us, watching—sometimes amused and sometimes dismayed—is our real self that is never bewildered and cannot be destroyed by life.

When Socrates lay in prison in Athens he smiled gently upon his friends who urged him to save his life by running away. He replied: "My belly would run away for another meal, but I must stay here." And when they asked him what he wished them to do with his body after his death, again he answered: "You may do with it as you like, provided you do not imagine it to be me."

Study your body. Think about it. Try to remember that it is, after all, only the clever servant of the real you within this familiar flesh.

Legislative Action In Curb of Rights Is Seen Necessary

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—To what extent has the United States gone totalitarian? Visitors from Britain, some of whom have come here in official capacity, express their amazement privately over the degree of restriction that has been imposed upon civilians and the unlimited authority that has been given to the military as compared with the withdrawal of civil rights.

David Lawrence

This is a subject which is beginning to trouble persons who fear the long-range effect of war policies and the dangerous trends which they represent. Vice President Wallace spends a good deal of time and energy worrying about the application of the four freedoms to peoples abroad, but he and other radicals would find plenty of food for thought in the gradual curtailment of civil rights during wartime.

The chief instrumentality of government responsible for the deterioration of democracy during the present war is Congress—both the Republican and Democratic parties. Neither the president nor his executives can be blamed for desiring a free hand in wartime. Nor can the military be criticized for seeking to exercise as much power as possible without hindrance from the civilian side.

Back to the People

Congress, however, is the representative branch of the government. And if Congress is indifferent or neglectful or simply too preoccupied in minor matters to see the gradual breakdown of the principles of constitutional government, the people alone can remedy the matter at the polls at the next congressional election by supporting candidates in the primaries and before the conventions of either party who will adhere to the four freedoms inside the United States.

The paramount principle of government in a democracy which is being violated and abused is that which assures a citizen the protection of the constitution against unequal application of the laws or the confiscation of his property without due process of law.

Rent control, price control, allocation of war materials are all handled by governmental agencies which in large part are abandoning the principle of equal protection of the laws. These agencies are permitting discriminations as between citizens and are refusing to promulgate standards of regulation so that citizens may know just what the yardsticks by which government agencies apply a given action especially as between persons in the same line of business.

Jurisdiction Withdrawn

Normally, that is in peacetime, court review, while not always utilized, operates a psychological preventative of arbitrary action by governmental agencies. But Congress has withdrawn from the federal courts of the United States, located in the more than 100 judicial districts from coast to coast, jurisdiction over the acts of executive agencies in connection with several important pieces of legislation.

The simple remedy of civil injunction has been practically eliminated and the citizen can test the constitutionality of a law in most cases only by risking criminal prosecution, for his attorneys will find it difficult for him to get a district court review otherwise. Last week Judge Charles S. Brigle in the United States District Court, sitting at Peoria, Ill., joined with two other judges in a unanimous opinion refusing a restraining order because he said Congress had so stipulated. He said in his remarks from the bench:

"This is a culmination of a long series of acts, depriving the courts of jurisdiction, vesting decisions instead in the various boards throughout the country. The OPA act provides that

A SQUATTER ON THE PREMISES

Hoosier Politicos Cause Willkie To Shy From the Globaloney Stuff, Mallon Says

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13.—Wendell Willkie has given some signs of becoming a slightly altered man since his long sit-and-talk sessions on the Ellwood rail fence with the Hoosier Republicans.

The act also covers declaratory judgments. The district court is subject to Congress. Congress can withdraw or give the court jurisdiction. In this case, it has withdrawn jurisdiction. To my mind the trend is band. It is not in conformity with the traditions of America.

Cumbersome Process

Thus the citizen in many instances can no longer go to his district court but must go all the way to Washington to the emergency court of appeals from which he may or may not get a review by the supreme court. This makes the judicial process cumbersome and highly restricted but doubtless the framers of the law knew that witnesses and data could not be conveniently brought to the national capital from all parts of the country for a trial court proceeding. It virtually assures finality of decision by governmental bureaucrats scattered throughout the country who, knowing they are not likely to be restrained by the courts, do about as they please.

Congress should either prescribe legislative standards or require the publication of administrative standards so that capricious and arbitrary decisions may no longer be made in secret or without an explanation in any public record.

Congress on its return this week will have before it no greater responsibility than to redeem the pledge which is being so widely publicized these days, namely that we are fighting this war to preserve the Four Freedoms under one of which certainly comes the motto engraved on the supreme court building—"Equal Justice under Law."

It's Good For a Bet

From the Pittsburgh Press

Congress having ordered liquidation of the National Youth Administration by year's end, Aubrey Williams, the head of this interesting federal agency, has resigned. President Roosevelt, accepting the resignation with regret, has indicated that he considered Mr. Williams too valuable a man to lose, and has told newspapermen they may expect to see him back in the government soon.

Indeed and indeed, we do expect that. Even death and taxes aren't much more certain than that Mr. Williams will quickly be restored to the federal payroll, on which his name has been conspicuous since 1933. And that the place found for him will be one where he can continue to exercise his peculiar talent for doing good in accordance with his own peculiar ideas. And that Mr. Williams's ideas for doing good will continue to involve the spending of a great deal of other peoples' money.

Before Pearl Harbor, the Jap militarists crushed all political opposition and there has been but one party since. No anti-government movement has developed in Tokyo as far as we know. The hold of the militarists on the people is complete because of the Shinto-Budhist religious background of the nationalist movement.

Might Kill Emperor

Everyone in Japan thinks he is sacrificing to get necessary raw materials for a greater nation. They

Little wisps of unplayed statements from him lately show him denying the Wallace kind of globaloney represents his "one world" views, also announcing he will campaign for the Republican party candidate for lieutenant governor of New York.

The Hoosier homefolk and the twenty-seven national committeemen who visited him in Indiana, are being given credit within the party for having inspired these developments. The politicians talked gently to Willkie because they were not sure how strong he is, but made little secret of their current opposition to him.

Two Things Laid Down

They know he has a powerful organization and many friends and, they, like everyone else, always want to be with the winner. But they told Willkie he must do two things if he is to get more than a minority of his ex-home delegation to the Republican convention.

First: He must prove by actions that he is actually a Republican, drop his individualistic rule and do something to help the party and other people in it.

Second: He must show also that his policies are not a rubber stamp of the New Deal in international affairs.

Willkie came back at them trying to justify his position. Victory next year he said rested upon party ties rather than upon getting the big independent vote. He also said he had nothing in mind like Wallace, and would make the difference clear.

What he has done is in line with these Hoosier conference developments, but there must be more if he is to start with Indiana.

As the Hoosier politicians tell it, Willkie has reason to be a very discouraged man at the moment.

Shipping Losses Hurt Japs

Unofficial talk has been heard here that Japan might break internally after Germany falls, and bring a swift conclusion of the world war a long time before the six years forecast by our admirals.

The idea is founded on the supposition that Jap shipping losses have prevented her from consolidating her newly won empire and from getting her vast new stores of raw materials into war production. No one here can have any conclusive evidence in that respect.

Wherever the blame lies, the hard fact is that this something-for-nothing fallacy has played into the hands of those who believe in the principle of centralized control, and has brought our governmental setup in this country to the brink of destruction.

There is a great deal of truth in what Judge Summers says. It seems to us, however, that it is a rather harsh judgment to blame it all on the people. We suspect that this run-to-Washington habit was started by politicians in the first place and has been largely kept alive by them as a means of enticing voters.

Wherever the blame lies, the hard fact is that this something-for-nothing fallacy has played into the hands of those who believe in the principle of centralized control, and has brought our governmental setup in this country to the brink of destruction.

The trend can be arrested in only one way—by abandonment of the whole system of grants in aid, the device which encourages extravagance by passing down tax money from large to a smaller unit of government.

Everyone in Japan thinks he is sacrificing to get necessary raw materials for a greater nation. They

Diversion of Coal To Italy Indicates Big Job of Allies

By MARK SULLIVAN

It was said, in newspaper speculation, that Secretary of State Cordell Hull's speech was timed to meet recent attacks upon him. But it was not Mr. Hull's speech was the further development of a formal and authoritative outline of American postwar foreign policy—a preliminary outline had been delivered by Mr. Hull in July last year. As such, Mr. Hull's address was timed almost to the minute. It comes at the very moment when postwar begins to overlap upon war when new problems, directly related to postwar begin, and call inexorably for decision and policy.

Of this overlapping of war and postwar, there is an illustration simple to understand. There is on the Atlantic ocean today coal bound for Italy which, when it was mined a week or so ago, was intended for American consumers. Because this coal is diverted to Italy, we at home must get along with less next winter. Coal-mine Administrator Ickes warns that our coal situation "is going to get worse."

For Utilities

This coal diverted to Italy is not for military purposes, except in an overlapping sense. It is not for the use of our armed forces. It is to supply the electric and other utilities of the part of Italy we occupy. Italy has no coal and until recently was supplied by Germany. Since her surrender, we must supply her. To the extent that our armed forces make use of Italian public utilities, the coal we send her may be said to have a war purpose.

But the large and long range purpose is to keep Italy a going concern, now and into the postwar period, until her ultimate status is determined. This period, during which Italy is to arrive at a new government, and the new government to be approved by the Allies, will be long, and will thrust essential postwar problems upon us.

During this period, Italy is to be administered by AMG (Allied Military Government for Occupied Territory). This body was made up, at first, of representatives of the United States and Britain, with lately a representative of Russia. AMG, among many other functions, will allocate the coal now on the way to Italy. This is but a small detail of an immense power. Ultimately AMG will have charge of practically the entire civil administration of Italy. In the terms of the recent armistice, Italy is to "comply with the political, economic and financial conditions which the Allies will impose later."

Headaches Begin

To impose new "political, economic and financial conditions" on Italy (and later on other countries) is a large order. It is certain to be attended by headaches. When AMG, then composed of American and British officials, took over administration of Sicily, it made use of the smaller officials it found in control—mayors of towns, police, mail carriers, and the like. These existing officials were members of the Fascist party. They had to be—every public servant in Italy was obliged to be a Fascist under that one-party system. AMG did not inquire what they were—AMG was intent only on keeping the country a going concern. To have thrown out the Fascist petty officials, and attempted to supplant them with others, would have paralyzed the public services and produced the very anarchy AMG was designed to prevent.

But at once arose outcry from radicals in America, who said the Fascists must be thrown out. Presently criticism came from the Russian official press. To take account of this, a Russian representative was added to AMG. This was proper, for it is obvious that all three—Britain, the United States and Russia—should be represented on the AMG of European countries that any or all of them occupy.

Many Cleavages

This is but a small example of what will bedevil the postwar period—in Italy, in Germany particularly, in France and the other countries to be liberated. In each country will be parties and factions eager to control the new government to be set up. The parties range from Communist, through Socialist, to conservative. The clamor of all will be directed to the Allied nations in occupation. And among these, there is inescapable cleavage of point of view between Russia, and the United States and Britain.

The postwar period will be crowded with controversy, likely to be long drawn out. Because conquered and liberated countries will look to us for food and other supplies, the postwar period will call upon us for continued exactions and deprivations. It also calls upon us for definite national policies, which Mr. Hull has begun to formulate.

Truck Drivers Charged with Illegal Sales

BALTIMORE, Sept. 13 (AP)—Truck drivers charged by the Federal Bureau of Investigation with selling poultry to restaurants and filling stations on highways from the Eastern Shore to New York will be arraigned tomorrow at Wilmington, Del., Special Agent John W. Vincent said today.

Vincent, in charge of the local field office for Maryland and Delaware, reported that thirty-one persons had been indicted in the roundup. He estimated that poultry growers lost more than $250,000 by the diversion of thousands of chickens from their normal markets.

He explained that the first indictments in the roundup which began at noon Saturday were issued for theft in interstate shipment and that a grand jury in Wilmington indicted the drivers.

The FBI also reported that a number of persons charged with buying the poultry had been arrested and that one of them admitted to participating in some 300 separate transactions estimated to involve 30,000 chickens valued at more than $30,000.

Vincent said that many of the truck drivers asserted that restaurant and filling station operators begged them to sell the poultry.

NOSES AND BODIES
FOR BOMBERS
(INSIDE AND OUT)

these men did regular production work and observed, at first hand, the production methods then in use. Our long background in building automobiles and trucks, plus the experience these men gained working with an aircraft manufacturer, enabled us quickly to get under way with the necessary tools and equipment to turn out "bodies" for bombers by quantity production methods.

To help acquaint us in advance with the many kinds of material and operations involved, the Army Air Corps sent us a bomber nose section. Our engineers and master mechanics made intensive analyses of aircraft blueprints covering more than fourteen thousand structural parts.

The materials to be used included aluminum, steel, brass, bronze, plastics, plywood and fabrics.

OVER 14,000 PARTS
TO BE FORGED, CAST,
STAMPED, MACHINED
AND PRECISION-FITTED

Many of the metal parts presented entirely new working characteristics. They required elaborate heat treating processes for the extreme stresses demanded of them. They also presented new problems in the design and use of the dies required to shape them.

Our production and purchasing specialists determined which parts we could subcontract to other companies. As the work progressed, orders were given to 2,255 subcontractors in 300 towns, in 29 states.

Aluminum forgings would be needed in large numbers by us and other manufacturers participating in the expanded aircraft production program. Therefore, we were given the job of building an aluminum forge plant to take care of these requirements. We also prepared at our foundry to produce aluminum castings required for plane manufacture.

Thousands of men and women had to be trained for this new type of work. Women were employed in large numbers and carefully taught drilling, riveting, machining and assembling of aircraft parts. Automobile sheet metal workers, body builders and trimmers were shown how to apply their skill and experience to the production of bomber parts.

The big nose of the bomber houses the Bombardier, Pilot, Co-Pilot, Navigator and Radio Operator. Nearly all the mechanical and electrical controls are here, while the center section is the bomb carrying space.

If you could look within these sections as the work of assembly goes on, you would see a bewildering network of wires and tubing as well as the structural skeleton of the ship. Every one of these 1,963 separate wires and over 1,000 feet of tubes—to say nothing of all the control mechanisms—must operate faultlessly.

In the production of "bodies" for bombers—a new field to Chrysler Corporation—again is demonstrated how our experience in peacetime car and truck production now is being applied to the production of war equipment in quantity... and on time.

Use your War Bonds... after Victory... to buy the gas range or refrigerator you've always wanted to own

People say: "Yes, there's plenty of money and jobs now—but what about after the war? How can Business assure employment? Won't there be another depression? Won't the Government have to 'spend and spend' again?"

What do you honestly think about it yourself? Don't you believe that American industry... if given the chance... could do as brilliant a job in peace as it is now doing in war?

Don't you believe that the average manufacturing plant could start making peacetime products again and bring back all its old workers if it had orders?

Don't you believe that those orders could be assured if people—after this war—had the money to put down for things they want to own?

War Bonds may well prove to be the answer to this whole problem of postwar employment for you, your sister's boy and the boy down the street who's now in the Air Corps.

Back up Uncle Sam, and your own son, husband or sweetheart, by buying all the War Bonds you can. That's for victory—now. Later they will be a backlog for the prosperity of your own family and a key to a richer enjoyment of living.

"A" Card Holders Must Have Tires Inspected

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 13 (AP)—Holders of "A" gasoline ration stamps must have their tires inspected before the September 30 deadline, Mr. Shikman Katz, OPA rationing official, reminded motorists today.

The inspection slips will be needed to obtain the next "A" book, expected to be issued some time next month and application procedure will be announced within the next week, he said.

The OPA official added that the mileage run up by motorists between their first tire inspection, for which the deadline was March 31, and the second on September 30, will be checked against mileage possible on "A" ration during that time.

Five Killed When Plane Hits House

GREENSBORO, N. C., Sept. 13 (AP)—A navy plane crashed into the home of Oliver Knight near Guilford College late today, killing four members of the family and the pilot, the plane's sole occupant.

The two-story frame house burst into flames. Several hours later the bodies had not been removed from the ruins.

The dead were Mrs. Oliver Knight, her oldest daughter, Miss Wilma Knight, 18; and two younger children, Dorothy and Oliver Knight, Jr.

The pilot, whose name was not released immediately, apparently was thrown from the plane or attempted to jump. His mangled body was found on the lawn. An unopened parachute lay nearby. Knight was near a grapevine several yards from the house and was uninjured. He is a city mail carrier.

er was within artillery range of Nakhin after capturing Kruti, twelve miles to the east.

Nakhin's seizure, now an imminent possibility, would put Russian troops only seventy-two miles from Kiev and cut the last North-South railway, available to the Germans east of the Middle Dnieper.

In the Central Ukraine another Red army driving on Kiev cut the Romnopolta railway at a point forty-two miles east of Priluki and 134 miles from Kiev, overrunning more than 140 localities.

Racing toward the Zaporozhe-Dnepropetrovsk escape bridges across the lower Dnieper river, the Soviet forces' pounding westward from the liberated Donets basin captured ninety more villages in the pursuit of the battered Germans.

Only in the Poltava-Lozovaya-Dnepropetrovsk triangle southwest of Kharkov did the Germans appear to be making a firm stand. This defense undoubtedly was to protect the withdrawal of the German from the Donets basin, but the Soviet pincers below and above this tangle made its early evacuation likely.

Bravely, where Russian peasants joined the city's workers to hold up the White Russian Marshal Denikin during the Soviet revolution, had a peacetime population of nearly 70,000 persons working in its locomotive, steel mills, cement plants and engineering works.

Wallace Says Standard Stalls Rubber Plans

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (AP)—Vice-President Wallace said today that the Standard Oil Company (N. J.) had "deliberately stalled some of the rubber and chemical companies in order to keep them from developing synthetic rubber" by processes controlled jointly by Standard and I. G. Farben, a German industrial firm.

He issued a public statement replying to Ralph W. Gallagher, the oil company president, who said an attack by Wallace on international cartels in a Chicago speech Sept. 11 was directed at his company "by implication."

Gallagher commented after Wallace's speech that "Mr. Wallace has again resorted to the label 'cartel' to alarm the American public. Surely Mr. Wallace should be in a position to know that long before war came we had worked with eight agencies of our government to establish synthetic rubber production in this country; that we put to our country's use every bit of technical knowledge we possessed."

In all, at least thirty nine Italian warships were in Allied ports and naval authorities awaited word of other arrivals from a score of Mediterranean bases.

Freedom for the forthcoming assault on Japanese sea communications was a powerful fleet including the British battleships Nelson, Rodney, Anson, Howe, Warspite and Valiant.

With these units joining the United States Pacific fleet there was a likelihood that the Japanese clean-up might be launched sooner than had been anticipated. Preparations for this drive are already shaping up under Vice Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten's newly-established South East Asia command.

Through Field Marshal Archibald P. Wavell, viceroy of India, the British have pledged the liberation of Burma among the first of their objectives, and there the first blow is expected to fall.

miral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the United States fleet, have had an opportunity to explain the services' reason for taking fathers.

While the draft and man power problems are scheduled to be the first tasks tackled in the Senate, a declaration on foreign policy is at the top of the House calendar.

Rep. Sabath (D-Ill.), chairman of the Rules committee, announced tonight the house will act first on a resolution by Rep. Fulbright (D-Ark.) to put Congress on record as favoring the creation of, and American participation in, international machinery powerful enough to establish and maintain a just peace.

Many other issues—some of which may crop up in the 1944 presidential campaign—confront the returning seventy-eighth Congress. Among them are battles over taxes, and the best methods of combating post-war unemployment and easing war's impact on business.

small German forces including elements of the first parachute division. Reinforcements swelled the Allied expedition which was "continuing to enlarge their bridgehead," the communique said. A headquarters dispatch said the Italian military and civilian population both were co-operating heartily with the invasion forces striking up from the conquered heel.

Bari Reported Occupied
The British radio said Altamura, twenty-two miles west of Bari and forty-four miles inland from Taranto, had been captured. There was no confirmation of an Algerian report that Bari had been entered.

While the bulk of Allied air forces were in tactical support of the armies around Salerno and in the south, Liberators from the Middle East command and the RAF started softening up the Dodecanese islands of Italy which lie in the Eastern Aegean Sea just off the Turkish coast. Rhodes, the largest island and Kingpin of the Archipelago, was the main target.

Beaufighters attacked the Markiza airstrome Saturday and Wellington bombers hit the Calato airbase that night. The American bombers attacked both targets. All Allied planes returned safely, encountering neither ground nor air opposition.

(Turkish reports told of severe fighting between Italian and German garrisons in the Dodecanese islands and said some hard-pressed Italian units were yearning for Allied landings.)

German Efforts Weak

The Germans, possibly drawing on their home reserves, threw ninety to 100 fighters against the Allies in the Salerno area, but their efforts against the beaches and shipping were described as weak. The Allies shot down thirteen planes and lost two.

American and Allied pilots were preoccupied with roads leading to the Salerno bridgehead, intent upon blocking passage of German units streaming toward the crucible of battle.

Nearly every road and rail junction in the Naples area was under attack around the clock. Enemy troop movements from north and south of Salerno, some with as many as 200 vehicles, were strafed and bombed.

The Fascist, pro-German Gringoire, a political weekly owned and edited by Horace De Carbuccia, a Corsican who was involved in numerous political scandals in France before the war, demanded "pitiless repression of the terrorists," particularly those who attack "farms, barns, crops, farmers and agricultural machinery."

Vatican Tranquil As War Continues

LONDON, Sept. 13 (AP)—Above the turmoil of Italy and over the heads of its ring of nervous Nazi troops, the Vatican radio still spoke tranquilly to the world tonight.

Its latest message, as recorded by the ministry of information, reassured British listeners of the safety of relatives and friends in the convent of the institute of the Blessed Virgin.

"The convent has suffered no harm during the events of the past week," said the Vatican broadcast. The eyes of the Catholic world have focussed eagerly on the Holy precincts of Rome since Adolf Hitler's headquarters, in the announcing the occupation of Rome, said Nazi forces would "protect" Vatican City.

The London Daily Mail commented that "the danger to the Pontiff is that Hitler will kidnap him under the specious pretext of 'protection.' He may allege that Rome is in danger of becoming a 'front line city.'" charge of his task to prevent further shedding of blood and to ensure both the restoring of order in the city and the food supply.

"Saboteurs and franc-tireurs (guerrillas) will be rigorously dealt with according to martial law. Whoever is found in possession of arms at midnight, Sept. 15, will be court-martialed."

The proclamation followed by a day the institution of a "reign of terror" ordered by Nazi Field Marshal Albert Kesselring who, as commander in chief in the south, proclaimed "German martial law" and laid down a ten-point decree which listed penalties up to execution for uncooperative Italians.

In order to accomplish its mandate to bring the cost-of-living down to September, 1942, levels, OPA figures it must roll prices back 4.7 per cent. The new $100,000,000 program will get it about half way down, Bowles said, and improved enforcement measures, he added, will bring about a decline of about one per cent, leaving a gap of about 1.3 per cent still to be eliminated.

Berlin Reports

that it knew nothing about where Mussolini was and added that he never had been in British-American hands.

Although it apparently was Hitler's intention to set up a dutiful Mussolini as a sort of expatriate Italian Laval-Radio Atlantic, a Nazi-dominated station, said Mussolini was enroute to Berchtesgaden—it was felt here that any government he set up was not likely to draw much attention from the Italian people already caught in one of the harshest dilemmas of history.

Duce Still Has Those Ulcers

For one thing Axis sources permitted themselves a reference to Mussolini's health for the first time, one Berlin broadcast stating that he had been suffering from gastric ulcers for many years and that the illness had grown worse in the last few months.

In this connection it was noted that the Germans said Mussolini's original captors had "strapped him in an ambulance"—a possible indication of distraught nerves.

This did not prevent the Germans from describing the exploit as a very big action, however, and the Swiss telegraph agency, in a dispatch from unstated sources, even reported that the liberation had taken place near Palermo in Sicily.

Heroic Adolf to Rescue

And it did not prevent the Germans from expanding on the themes of "Adolf Hitler kept his word" and "a heroic German act of loyalty."

The German high command devoted a passage in its communique to observe that "Il Duce's extradition to the Anglo-Americans, which had been agreed upon with the Badoglio government, has been foiled."

From Oslo, Brussels, Bucharest, Rome, Milan, and even Tokyo, the German radio reported "reaction" to the news.

"The whole Japanese nation was overwhelmed with joy," the chief of the Japanese information bureau was quoted as saying. Norwegians were declared "completely under the spell" of "one of the most daring coups de main in world history."

Dispatches from the Swiss border reported a more serious angle, saying that Fascist uprisings and parades had taken place in some cities in the north held by Marshal Erwin Rommel's forces.

Cumberland will not have a training program for transportation workers, members of the Tri-State Traffic Club were told last night at their dinner meeting in the Golden Gate tea room, when a report of a special committee assigned to study and obtain the facts reported its findings, according to Carroll E. France, president.

The survey showed no interest whatever by persons who would have benefited most from the inauguration of such a program, and C. C. Keyes, field representative of the apprentice and training service of the War Man Power Commission, who attended the meeting, said it is not the idea of the commission to sponsor a development in the Cumberland area unless it is definitely shown that such a program is needed.

The blaze, which started along an old trail, began at about 1 p. m. and lasted until 5 p. m., when local crews and wardens brought it under control, but not completely extinguished. The cause was unknown but it was thought that a burning cigarette set the blaze.

With the hunting season opening tomorrow, forest officials urge people to be particularly careful with cigarettes, camp fires and matches because the dry forest floors are ready tinder for destructive blazes.

They've Got What it Takes!

They're flying sentries guarding our coast lines... day-and-night couriers of vital war equipment... the 20,000 skilled pilots of the Civil Air Patrol!

IT'S CAMELS FOR ME — THEY HAVE A RICH, FULL FLAVOR — AND AN EXTRA MILDNESS THAT'S SO EASY ON MY THROAT

"OPS." It's Flight Officer Gay Gahagan giving the "orders of the day" to her fellow fliers in the Operations Room, and it's just like a regular Air Force "briefing"—even to the Camel cigarettes. For Camels are the pick of pilots—the choice of smokers everywhere who want full flavor, extra mildness.

ARMY MISSION. Rushing key Army personnel or special equipment to distant camps is just one of the important jobs of the CAP pilots. Here, ready to take off from an eastern airport, is CAP Flight Officer Gahagan. Her destination is an Army secret, but it's no secret that her favorite cigarette is Camel—see left.

Meet Flight Officer GAY GAHAGAN

She's a veteran of six years' flying... had logged more than 200 hours in the air even before she joined the Civil Air Patrol... and she can fly in inky darkness as well as daylight. Her smoking log? "I've smoked Camels for five years," she says. "Their delightful taste has a fresh appeal with every puff. I find them milder—and Camels don't get my throat, no matter how much I smoke."

See if you don't agree with Flight Officer Gay Gahagan—give Camels the test of your own "T-Zone."

The "T-Zone"... where cigarettes are judged

The "T-ZONE"—Taste and Throat—is the proving ground for cigarettes. Only your taste and throat can decide which cigarette tastes best to you... and how it affects your throat. Based on the experience of millions of smokers, we believe Camels will suit your "T-ZONE" to a "T."

First in the Service

The favorite cigarette with men in the Army, the Navy, the Marines, and the Coast Guard is Camel. (Based on actual sales records.)

BETTER VENTILATION IS RECOMMENDED FOR HAMILL MINE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (AP) — Improved ventilation, better timbering, and elimination of ignition hazards have been recommended by the bureau of mines for the 250-ton-a-day Hamill mine of the McNitt Coal Company, Garrett county, Md. "While a number of commendable practices were observed during inspection," the announcement said, "the general inspector pointed out that the existing ventilating system was unsatisfactory and that there was 'practically no circulation of air' on the left side of the mine."

The bureau recommended that a recently installed ventilating fan be operated continuously, that loose rock and overhanging ribs on main haulways be taken down or effectively supported, and that smoking be prohibited underground, permissible explosives be used only in "a permissible manner," that open-flame cap lamps be replaced with permissible electric cap lamps, and that nonpermissible electrical equipment be operated only in air not likely to contain explosive gas.

The announcement said "praiseworthy items noted by the inspector included use of protective hats by most employees, the clean and well-installed tipples, use of the vibration method in testing roof, adequate checking system, and maintenance of a good pillar line in retreat mining operations."

Training Center
For Non-Farm
Boys Closes

PARSONS, Sept. 13 — West Virginia's only training center for non-farm boys, the Tucker county training project near Parsons, closed last week, Benjamin F. Creech, state supervisor of the Extension emergency farm labor program reported. Arrangements have been made to harvest and sell all crops during the next few weeks.

The lack of boys available for farm training, together with a decline in farmer's demands for husky boys to help out on the farms, were given by Creech, as the main reason for closing the training project. Closing of the Tucker county farm does not mean, however, that the West Virginia Agricultural Extension Service will cease its efforts to find boys for farm work in the future when requests are made for them. Emergency labor supervisors and county agricultural agents will continue to seek husky boys who want farm jobs and farmers who need such labor.

Rehabilitation
Program Planned
At Mt. Lake Park*Plans Discussed for Reviving Traditional Tennis Tournament Next Year

OAKLAND, Md., Sept. 13 — Protection of the "summer home" front by summer and all-year-round residents of Mt. Lake Park and the inauguration of a rehabilitation program are two plans under consideration by a group of people of that area.

Plans have been discussed for the revival of the Park's traditional tennis tournament for Western Maryland championships and a long range program for rebuilding the tennis courts, grandstand and clubhouse and salvaging of equipment. At the same time a plan has been suggested which may eventually see the construction of a swimming pool for residents and visitors of the Park.

For some time it has been the belief of many Mt. Lake residents that unless something is done immediately toward preservation or restoration of the tennis property there would not be enough left to work with when the war is over. There has been no tennis tournament for two years.

A survey of the situation was made during the summer and a temporary plan to do the necessary work, was agreed upon. This past week the program took shape with the naming of a committee which included Arthur Taylor, of Cincinnati, O., as treasurer; Rep. Jennings Randolph, Elkins, W. Va.; Mrs. Raymond Rapp, Clarksburg, W. Va.; Mrs. Kitty Carr Beacon and her husband, J. Patrick Beacon, former West Virginia state senator, of Huntington, and Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Eleanor Taylor, Cincinnati; Mrs. C. W. Prichard, Mt. Lake Park; Mrs. Kena Clark, Fairmont; Dr. E. I. Baumgartner and A. D. Naylor, Oakland; H. L. Bitner, mayor of Mt. Lake Park; Willoughby Chesley, Larchmont, New York; Mrs. James Holloway, Wheeling, W. Va.; Ralph E. Weber, Oakland; H. S. Richardson, Philadelphia; David T. Davis, Cumberland; Col. Hugh Miller, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. DeWitt Conway, Uniontown, Pa.; Mrs. Charles Boigiano, Loch Lynn; Mrs. Margaret Burghaus, Mrs. June Grimes, Mrs. Lillian Davis, Mt. Lake Park.

These people are to direct the program in its initial stages. Next season it is proposed that a meeting of all persons interested in the plan for a greater Mt. Lake Park meet to establish an official organization. The new boosters are being called "The Mt. Lakers".

A granddaughter who left the house and went to the home of a neighbor was also overcome after reaching the neighbor's house.

Corp. William Hutcheson Writes His Parents of Experiences in England*Son of Lonaconing Couple
Has Been Overseas for About Three Months

LONACONING, Sept. 13 — Corp. William H. Hutcheson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Simeon H. Hutcheson, High street, who has been overseas for nearly three months with a fighter squadron, relates his adventures in a recent letter home from "somewhere in England":

"Dear folks: I am going to start this letter tonight but doubt if I get it finished for I am not too good with a typewriter although I have been writing most of my letters with one." Corp. Hutcheson writes.

"Since I arrived in England I have seen a lot of the English country including making one trip to London where I saw some of the famous English buildings as well as some of the damage done by the blitz. The English people are very friendly. They seem so far behind in regards to the more modern conveniences of living. They still do their washing by hand and they don't even have ice boxes, nor, in fact, do they have ice. If you want a drink of beer you have to drink it warm."

Purchases Bicycle

"Since I have arrived I bought what seems the only means of transportation they have at present—a bike. It is nothing to ride to town at night which might be as much as ten miles one way. Along the road you see children under six and elders over sixty on them. The English bike does not have a back coaster brake but has two hand brakes which fit on the handle bars. And they have mostly light bikes which account for the distances travelled."

"I think that I have put over 200 miles on mine this month alone. I spent one of my two day passes just riding around the country watching the men harvest, which is quite old-fashioned. I don't believe that they would know what a combine looks like, for they use the old-fashioned equipment, and often it is horse-pulled. There is very little, or no, motor travel here. What there is, is done on the wrong side of the road which is very awkward when you are driving an American truck or jeep or even a bike but I am used to it now."

"I received one of the monthly letters from the Allegheny county Letter League last week. I must say that they summarize the news quite thoroughly."

"As yet I have not been able to contact anyone that I know but I have received Al Hendra's (a cousin) and Eddie Jones's addresses and I hope to be able to find them. "The main amusement over here is either going to the movies, which are usually over a year old, or playing ball in one of the fields. Sometimes we play darts, English style."

Enlisted Last November

"Well, the rest of the men are ready to go back to the tents and quit for the night. Hoping that you all are well for I am fine and it is not too bad living in tents; although this English weather is very damp and cold at nights."

"When I get home the next time we can all celebrate and won't have to worry about having to go back to the army routine."

"BILL"

Corp. Hutcheson, a graduate of Central high school with the class of 1939, was employed by the American store, the Celanese Corporation of America and as an electrician by a construction company at the Fairchild plant at Hagerstown and the Allegheny Ordnance plant at Pinto.

On Armistice day last year he enlisted in the United States Army Air corps at Baltimore. He received his basic training at Atlantic City, N. J., and then was transferred to Trux Field, Madison, Wis. Following rigid training there he was sent to Tomah, Wis., then to Orlando, Fla., to attend the army air force school of applied tactics. He was stationed at Westover Field, Mass., before his departure for overseas duty. He wrote home that he celebrated Independence day on the Atlantic ocean. He observed his twenty-second birthday on June 17.

Mr. and Mrs. Hutcheson have another son, Pfc. Simeon H. Hutcheson, who is with the Eightieth division of the field artillery. He is home on furlough now from Nashville, Tenn. He will return next week to Camp Phillips, Kansas. Montgomery and Robert Hutcheson are two other sons.

Axis Engines Now Haul Allied Trains

Half of Diesel Locomotives Sabotaged by Retreating Afrika Korps Rolling Again---Thanks to Yankee Skill

BENGHAZI "EXPRESS"—An American diesel pulls a string of Egyptian freight cars on long haul to Benghazi

By Central Press
HEADQUARTERS UNITED STATES MIDDLE EAST ARMY FORCES—As Nazis and Italians retreated and finally capitulated in this theater, they sabotaged every Diesel locomotive they had to abandon—but today Americans have fully half those engines working full time against their former owners.

Forced to withdraw before the onslaught of the Allies, the Axis systematically damaged every locomotive, tore up miles of track and destroyed shops. But this meant little to crack American railroad battalions. In a matter of days, they re-laid the track, repaired the shops and—taking usable parts from the Diesels—made one good locomotive out of every two the enemy had left behind.

The men worked fast and expertly, spurred by a rather long period of inactivity, so far as railroad was concerned—because on arrival they found themselves ahead of their equipment.

Several battalions were sent to this theater by the Army Service Forces but one of them, commanded by Lieut. Col. Alfred R. Walker—former Illinois Central Diesel expert—did a particularly outstanding job in helping solve British Eighth Army transportation problems—when their "railroading inactivity" was over.

Men from "Everywhere"
The outfit is a true cross-section of American railroad circles. The men came from the Southern, Atlantic Coast Line, Louisville, Nashville, Seaboard, Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Ohio, New York Central, and Union Pacific; and among them are Baldwin and Electro-Motive experts in the manufacture of giant engines.

But with all this talent, there was—momentarily—no equipment and so many a Diesel maintainer with years of experience found himself digging a slit trench or pushing a wheelbarrow.

Diesel electricians wired barracks and shops. Railroad steam-fitters, painters and carpenters renovated a hotel for an Army billet. Air-brake mechanics worked on trucks and autos.

Engineers who had held the throats of many a fast locomotive used axes and mauls. Machinists took turns at kitchen police.

"Ready to Roll"
Then came an order: "Blank many men Blank port to assemble American Diesels being unloaded there." They dropped hammers and axes and shovels and dishpans and in a few hours after arriving had the first giant engine ready to roll.

It was not long after this that a contingent was ordered into the western desert to begin repairs on equipment which the enemy was leaving in its retreat toward the final defeat at Tunis and Bizerte—and it was then that one-for-two locomotive salvaging began.

Not long ago another order reached the group. It was to establish a school for Diesel engine drivers; and today they are passing on to others the knowledge and experience they brought into this theater from civilian life.

Locomotives pulling trains into Berlin sometime in the future will in all probability be Axis-made, but you can bet they will be carrying Allied troops and be manned in large part by American engineers.

"Souls at Sea" Scores Real Dramatic Hit

A trial of a sea captain which electrified the world a hundred years ago is powerfully and brilliantly brought back to life in the epic motion picture "Souls at Sea," now at the Liberty theater.

Played by an excellent cast headed by Gary Cooper, George Raft and Frances Dee, and with Robert Cummings in a strong supporting role, "Souls at Sea" is the story of "Nugget" Taylor, an ex-slave trader, played by Cooper, who happened to be returning to the United States on the brigantine "William Brown." In mid-Atlantic the "William Brown's" master, played by Harry Carey, was killed and shortly later the vessel caught fire. Because of his rank, Taylor took command of the vessel.

Realizing that there weren't enough life boats to take care of all the passengers, Taylor held one of the weirdest trials ever held on land or sea. He ordered the entire ship's company and passenger list to the quarter deck and decided who should be permitted to escape in the life boats and who was to remain behind and go to the bottom with the ship.

Judy Canova Is City "Hillbilly"

"Though widely famed as a 'hillbilly comedienne,' Republic's Judy Canova had never seen America's rural regions until recently on her personal appearance tours. Her new picture, 'Chatterbox,' now showing in the Maryland theater, presents her against a dude ranch background. Although a specialist in bizarre humor, she has a figure which is the envy of many a glamorous star in Hollywood. . . . Stands five feet, five and a half inches tall and weighs 128 pounds. Loves to cook and has a well-stocked library of cook books. . . . Her pet hobby is her movie camera.

Peace Issues Continue To Lead, But Traders Remain Conservative

By BERNARD S. O'HARA
NEW YORK, Sept. 13 (AP) — Mer-

There still was some switching from armament to peace issues by those imbued with short-war psychology although several of the former attracted bids on the idea they had been oversold.

Bullish forces leaned to the conservative side pending further Italian developments, conclusion of the big government bond drive and more definite clues as to the attitude of Congress on taxes and other legislation affecting business.

Dealings were relatively sluggish from the start and prices irregular. Variations, on the whole, were in minor fractions. Most steels, motors and rails were under water at the close. Several of the recently depressed aircrafts revived.

Transfers of 506,380 shares compared with 760,190 in the preceding full session.

Among popular stocks edging into new high ground for the year or longer were Wilson & Co., Kaufman, Allied Stores, Interstate Department Stores and American Locomotives preferred (new).

In front at the last were N. Y. Central, American Telephone, Standard Oil (N.J.), Kennecott, Sears Roebuck, Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, Glenn Martin, Sperry, Air Reduction and U. S. Gypsum.

Declines were registered for U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Goodrich, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, Southern Pacific, Great Northern, Chesapeake & Ohio, International Harvester, American Smelting, J. C. Penney and Union Carbide.

In the Curb gains of better than a point were shown by Humble Oil and American Cyanamid "B". Aluminum of America slipped along with Brewster Aero, Lake Shore, Electric, Electric Bond & Share and Cities Service. Turnover here was 131,655 shares versus 176,315 last Friday.

The bond market held its balance by a slim margin as prices fluctuated within a small circle and trading activity contracted still further from last week's low level. Sales of $5,639,800 compared with $6,451,500 last Friday and $7,394,400 on Thursday, official opening day of the Third war loan drive which got a stranglehold on investment interest promptly and has held it since.

A few low to medium prices rails made the best showing on the advancing side. U. S. governments were extremely quiet.

Chicago Grain Market

CHICAGO, Sept. 13 (AP) — Grain futures had plenty of strength to resist profit-taking today and closed with gains of a cent or more in some cases. A firm cash market for wheat and oats, and continued strength in Winnipeg wheat were the main bolstering influences.

Restaurants, like housewives, are known by the "POINTS" they serve

RESTAURANT owners and housewives know that ration points are just as necessary ingredients in wartime menus as money. They know, too, that only strict accounting of these two items provides a popular bill of fare.

That's why the well-managed restaurant uses a National Food and Beverage Checking Machine in the kitchen. Here an item-by-item check is made of each serving on your waiter's tray . . . and you receive a guest check which shows in clear, unchangeable figures the amount charged for each item served. While these figures are being printed for your convenience and protection, this National sets up controlling facts and figures from which management can check all food and beverage sales.

This is only one of many mechanized systems built by National to provide protection for industry, business, government and the public. . . . An adequate supply of used Nationals is available for business needs and National Accounting-Bookkeeping Machines can be secured by essential business through priorities.

For THE GAME'S SAKE

By LAWRENCE PERRY

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 — Recently we visited Fordham where football has been dropped for the duration. This means all football, even the informal game. If any students want to play they can organize scratch games and Jack Coffey, graduate manager of athletics, will supply them with footballs and uniforms.

Harvard seemed to have once possessed a thought concerning the autumn sport not greatly differing from Fordham's. But Carroll Getchell, graduate manager of athletics at the Cambridge seat of learning, is an imaginative man. Also, he knows youth. Thus constituted and equipped he had more than a suspicion that football of some sort would be played at the university and so, taking precaution, he told Henry Lamar to be prepared.

"If any boys turn up who want to play the game," he said, "and want to be coached, please attend to them."

Lamar, a product of the University of Virginia, where he played football but won greater fame as a boxer, was coach last year of the Crimson freshman team. Obeying instructions from his chief he prepared himself and it is well that he did. Up until the other day 120 men — including navy and army trainees, marines, R. O. T. C. and regular students — have turned out for football.

Seeing in this outpouring full outlet for their personal enthusiasm for the gridiron game, Lamar at once proceeded to assort the players in accordance with their past records and their ability established and potential. He organized an "A" squad, a "B" squad and other squads of lesser proficiency. It is hoped that regular games will be played on at least five Saturday afternoons. Tufts college has an eleven and it will play at Cambridge and of many service teams available two or three will be selected as soon as Lamar is through appraising the strength of his varsity. Meanwhile, games against Exeter and Andover have been already arranged for the "B" eleven.

But football is by no means confined to the ambitious men who have reported to Lamar at the stadium on Soldier field. All the colleges that make up the university—Lowell, Winthrop and the rest—are organizing house teams which, as in the past, will give to football at Cambridge a significance equalled only at Yale where house teams will also play the game.—Consolidated News Features.

Thousands Rush To Pay New Taxes

BALTIMORE, Sept. 13 (AP)—The new withholding tax brought a typical March 15th rush at the offices of the Bureau of Internal Revenue today, as several hundred persons lined up for assistance in making out their reports of estimated 1943 income tax.

A staff of 100 deputy collectors worked throughout the day, while another twenty-five men in the bureau were assigned to answer the flood of telephone calls which began pouring in when the offices opened for business this morning.

Look into Your Heart before you give me your Answer!

MY NAME isn't important. I'm just one of the millions of fellows over here fighting for America. I'd like to speak for these fellows—to you folks back home.

You see, I think I know what's in their minds, because we often talk things over among ourselves. Mostly we talk about home—about the places we came from and the things we plan to do when we get back. Right now, especially, we're thinking a lot about home, for we're in the bloodiest battles of history—and we know that some of us will not come back. Some of us will never see again the ones we love.

But—we've got a job to do and we're going to do it. What I want to say to you folks back home is this: we'd like to think that you are with us in this bitter struggle of invasion. It would help a lot to know that you are really behind us, backing us up 100 per cent. It's going to take a heap of ammunition—and ships and planes, tanks and guns, to beat the Axis. That's what the 3rd War Loan is for; it's for INVASION. Most of us fellows in the service are putting every dollar we can into War Bonds. But you folks back home will have to carry the big load. We've got to depend on you. Don't fail us, will you?

Yes, it's to you this boy is looking in this critical hour. Today America calls upon you to do your part in the 3rd WAR LOAN. And your part is at least one EXTRA $100 War Bond during the drive. AT LEAST $100. That's in addition to your regular War Bond subscriptions. Invest more if you possibly can—some of you must invest thousands in order to reach our national quota. Invest out of your income—invest out of your idle or accumulated funds.

Remember, this money must come from individuals like yourself. Each and every one must do his share.

Let's do it the American way—willingly, gladly. Do it with the knowledge that you are putting your money into the safest investment in the world—to be paid back with interest by your government.

Sacrifice today—you will be richer for it tomorrow. Back the invasion now—buy at least one extra $100 War Bond in September.

Your Answer is Either "Yes" or "No" in this Roll Call of the Nation—

YES

I will honestly do my best to invest in at least one extra $100 War Bond during the 3rd War Loan Drive. I will lend my Government this money gladly to back up our fighting men.

NO

I am not lending any of my money to my country, I'm spending it. Sure, I know the boys who are fighting for me need support, but let somebody else make the sacrifices.

Your answer will be given in the number of EXTRA War Bonds you invest in during September.

Skelton Returns To Air Network After Vacation

Quiz Show Will Continue on Wednesday Night Spot

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, Sept. 13. (P)—Red Skelton comes back Tuesday night to NBC. He'll have along his regular "company" in doing so at 10:30 after a vacation spent largely in touring service camps. The quiz show, which took over for the summer, nevertheless is continuing on the air by moving to Wednesday nights.

Theodore Granik's American forum on NBC at 8 is calling six members of the House of Representatives to its microphone to hear what they have to report on "Home Front Attitude" such as the reaction to rationing, OPA and the various new measures affecting the public.

War Bond Skit

Jane Cowl in "Never Call Retreat" is presenting a war bond skit on the Blue at 10:15 as one of a series. The Edgar Wallace tale "The Flying Squad," detective spy story, gets the space in the Mystery Theater on NBC at 9. This will be the locale for Passport for Adams on CBS at 10, with Robert Young in the lead. It is the fifth episode.

Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH

Guard Fruit Trees against Tussock Moth

By DEAN HALLIDAY

Be alert this winter to guard Victory garden fruit trees by spying out the egg masses of the tussock moth and destroying them, thus saving the trees from the attacks of this pest next spring. Keep an eye on shade trees, too, for the eggs of the tussock moth.

The caterpillars of the white-marked tussock moth which hatch after passing the winter in the egg state, feed on the surface of the leaves, skeletonizing them. One of these caterpillars is shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph. These caterpillars attack apple, pear, quince, plum and other deciduous fruit trees, and almost all shade trees.

The tussock moth lays eggs in conspicuous masses, nearly an inch long and 50 to 100 eggs each, attached to the trunk, branches or dead leaves of the tree or nearby objects, usually on top of the grayish cocoon from which the female moth emerged. The eggs, illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, are covered with a mass of white, stiff substance, having the appearance of hardened latex.

Scrape the egg masses off with a stick and burn them or put them in a can of kerosene. Burning the cocoons from the bark with a torch injures the trees, but the Victory gardener can protect his fruit trees by spraying early in June, when the newly hatched caterpillars are feeding. Use a lead arsenate spray (one pound to 50 gallons of water) as soon as the caterpillars appear in numbers upon the trees.

DON'T LET IT DOWN YOU

WHEN YOUR side fails to make a contract which it bid by sound methods, don't let it down you or make you timid the next time a like situation is presented. Average players could learn a very useful lesson if they could sit in on some of the world's greatest experts when they got set on a constructively bid contract. They would find the stars treating it as "all in the game" and not having a fruitless post-mortem about what might have been, when they were agreed on what correct action was.

North on this deal was John R. Crawford, brilliant Philadelphia master; South was Howard Schenken of New York, who won practically every national championship, including the Masters' Pairs, in which this deal arose. West was Lee Hazen, who has won many championships including the Masters' Individual, and East was Richard L. Frey, one of the most consistent winners of national events since the game began.

Mr. Hazen made the clearly marked correct lead of the spade.

RADIO'S MYSTERY MAN

FINESSE above all is what Hi Brown requires in a "whodunit." By JOHN L. SPRINGER AP Features Writer

NEW YORK—To look at Him Brown, you'd never know he spends most of his time thinking up new ways of killing people.

He's a tall, dark, soft-spoken, former Brooklyn boy who carries pictures of his wife and two children in his wallet and does good deeds for his mother. But he is probably responsible for erasing more characters—good and bad—than any man in radio.

Hi Brown is broadcasting's mystery man. He supervises the writing, acting and directing of four of the top spine-tingling programs on the air and is rated as the leading exponent of the "kill 'em or catch 'em" school of radio dramas.

As the producer of Inner Sanctum, The Thin Man, Bulldog Drummond and Nero Wolfe—shows which ooze blood and thunder out of millions of loudspeakers every week—Brown has had plenty of opportunity to philosophize on the fine art of murder.

"It's not what you do it with, but the technique, the delicacy, the finesse you use," he declares quietly. "We've killed our characters every way. We've knifed them, shot them, garroted them, burned them, frozen them, poisoned them, bashed their heads, given them rare and fantastic diseases, pushed them out of windows and over cliffs."

"But always we do it with finesse. Until the very end we keep the listener hoping that the villain is only kidding. Then, when the deed is done, it comes as a greater shock."

Whatsoever happens to his listeners, Brown remains undisturbed about it all. He's been in radio since 1926—acted while attending New York City College and Brooklyn Law School—and another piece of butchery is all in the day's work.

Only 33, Brown has been producing (putting shows together, then selling them in a package to a sponsor) for eleven years. He turned to horror with a studious mind and read all the old masters—De Maupassant, Stevenson, Poe.

"What radio writers they would make today," he now says sadly. Although he also is the guiding hand behind two daytime serials—Joyce Jordan and Green Valley, U.S.A.—his considerable prestige along Radio Row rests on his "whodunits." He says he is not impressed by his yearly earnings, which are large enough to provide him with an extensive library and collection of American art and a large fashionable apartment, which he uses as his office and where he can concoct new hair-raising and fittingly wonder about the mystery of it all.

"Cyburn" To House Full Quota Soon

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 13 (AP)—Thoroughly equipped, and almost completely repaired, "Cyburn" soon will house its full quota of forty-four children, Dr. Ethel Gardner, superintendent, announced today.

The big house on the famed 180-acre Jones Falls Valley estate of the late Mrs. Bruce Cotten was leased from the park board by the department of public welfare as a home for neglected children.

Dr. Gardner said that a refrigerator room had yet to be installed, recreational equipment added, and "some little" wall papering and painting done.

"Despite the handicaps under which Cyburn has been operated to date, the children seem to love it," the superintendent declared. "They seem perfectly content. Indeed, they offer refusal to go into town. They say they are afraid they may miss some of the fun."

A single United States infantry division may expend 542 tons of ammunition in a single day.

Four Arrests Made in Gas Coupon Racket

Louis Waingold Is Held As Ringleader in Black Market Operations Here

C. A. Brown, Jack DeRosa and Leo Keplinger Are Also Taken into Custody by U. S. Marshal

Arrest of Louis Waingold, North Mechanic street pawnbroker, as the ringleader of a black market in gasoline, and three other men in the same case was disclosed last night by federal authorities.

The other men, taken into custody by United States Marshall Howard P. Loughrie, are C. A. Brown, an employee of Waingold; Jack DeRosa, an employee at the Kelly-Springfield plant; and Leo Keplinger, Wiley Ford, W. Va.

Government officials said millions of gallons of illegal gasoline were disposed of in Cumberland, other Maryland towns and in communities in West Virginia. Cumberland officials said was "flooded."

According to OPA authorities, gasoline coupons were sold at the Kelly plant, the Celanese plant, to filling station operators and at pool rooms. They brought from twenty-five cents for a single stamp to $2 for a page of stamps.

Following the arrest of Waingold and the other men, federal authorities said they contemplate action against all buyers of the illegal coupons, including filling station operators and other persons who have either held or used them to replenish their gasoline supply.

All four of the men are charged with "assigning, transferring and possessing" illegal coupons. Waingold is mentioned in two specific counts, according to reliable sources, who added that several additional charges will be entered against him. Officers pointed out that Waingold, a Polish Jew, is an alien.

Warrants are issued for the men were issued yesterday by United States Commissioner Wilbur V. Wilson at the request of Arthur Perlman, investigator for the Office of Price Administrator.

Perlman came here last week after Assistant Chief of Police John J. Treiber, Detective R. Emmett Flynn and Officer J. Carl Stouffer had conducted an extensive investigation and questioned a number of persons reported to have bought or sold the ration coupons.

Last night Perlman said Cumberland police "co-operated 100 per cent with government authorities in the investigation."

The four men will be arraigned before Commissioner Wilson at 10:30 a. m. today but a preliminary hearing will not be held until next week, authorities said.

Another Arrest Expected

Yesterday a government investigator was in nearby West Virginia questioning another man in connection with the case and he pointed out that he will continue his investigation here for several days. Arrest of another person is expected today, he said.

The coupons used in the black market here, federal officials said, are believed to have been stolen from ration boards in the East.

Maintenance of Civilian Interest Is Discussed At First Aid Meeting

The importance of maintaining civilian interest in first aid training and its benefits was discussed last night at the first meeting of the Red Cross first aid committee under its new chairman, H. Lee Silcox.

The discussion revealed that since the recent Allied victories have been reported, interest in first aid and home front activities has lagged, but it was indicated that committee members in charge of the various divisions will make particular effort to convince citizens of the essential need for first aid that always exists in factories, large organizations, homes and farms.

Further committee organization was deferred until the next meeting which will be held Monday, September 27. For the benefit of civilian defense workers, a first aid movie will be shown at 8 o'clock tonight at the city hall.

Celanese Police Win Triangular Pistol Contest

Defeat State and City Police in Close Match; Stanley Tops Scorers

Paced by Chief Rolly S. Stanley, who turned in a 290 out of a possible 300, the Celanese Corporation of America police pistol team defeated the Maryland State Police and the Cumberland Police Department in a close and interesting match yesterday at the city police pistol range, Fort Hill.

Celanese rolled up a total of 1,369 out of a possible 1,500 points to nose out Sgt. Moon's five-man team from the LaVale barracks by the slim margin of two points while the city police finished in third place only five points in the rear of the winners.

Two Make Perfect Scores

Two perfect scores of 100 aided materially in the victory of the Celanese outfit. Harold P. Kennard, a former city patrolman, scored a possible in the rapid fire test from the fifteen-yard line while C. M. Lohr duplicated the feat from twenty-five yards in slow fire.

Individual runner-up honors in the match went to Lt. James E. Van, of the city police, who turned in a total of 288 with 97s in slow and time fire and a 94 in rapid fire. He fell short two points of Chief Stanley's performance. Sgt. Truman Moon, of the state police, clicked off a 98 for rapid, 97 for slow and 92 for time fire for a total of 287 and third place.

Capt. A. F. Conley, of Scranton, Pa., plant guard officer of Western Maryland, who was range officer, said yesterday's contest was the closest at which he ever has officiated. Detective B. F. Gaffney, of the city police department, and Stanley were official scorekeepers.

Buy an Extra Bond and Tour Ordnance Plant

Personally Conducted Trips Arranged for Thursday, Friday, Saturday

Would you like to make a personally conducted tour through the Allegany Ordnance plant before it closes down in the near future?

Well, you can do it, by buying an extra war bond in the Third War Loan campaign now in progress.

Maj. E. J. Hill, commanding officer of the Ordnance plant here, has obtained permission for the tours from the War department in Washington, Porter D. Collins, chairman of the Publicity committee of the Third War Loan campaign in Allegany county announced last yesterday.

Collins said that through the fine co-operation of the Ordnance department the Kelly Springfield Engineering Company is arranging to have regular tours through the plant on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week for persons who "BUY AN EXTRA BOND".

The "extra" bond must be purchased at booths which will be set up at the Kelly plant, and must be in addition to bonds now being purchased through payroll deduction plans or bonds already bought during the Third War Loan campaign. In other words, in order to make the tour through the Ordnance plant, a bond must be purchased at booths to be erected at the Kelly plant.

Collins pointed out that this is a wonderful opportunity, not only to help put Allegany county over the top in the present war loan drive, but to see the Ordnance plant in operation.

Tours Thursday will be between 1 p. m. and 1:30 p. m., and 3:30 and 4 p. m. On Friday and Saturday tours will be between 1 p. m. and 1:30 p. m., 3:30 and 4 p. m., and 8 p. m. and 8:30 p. m.

Persons who purchase bonds for the tour must have credentials showing they are American citizens before they will be admitted to the plant. The tours will be conducted by regular plant guards.

Those interested in seeing the Ordnance plant in operation are advised to watch Cumberland newspapers for further details.

The first of a series of four war bond broadcasts by Italo-American groups will be presented Friday at 6:15 p. m., over radio station WTBO by the grand lodge of the Sons of Italy, Baltimore.

Appeals to Italo-Americans to purchase war bonds will be made by Mayor Thomas P. Conlon and John V. Santelli, secretary of William P. Lodge No. 1689, Sons of Italy, and local treasury representative for payroll war savings.

WACs To Open Intensive Recruiting Campaign in Kelly Plant Today

Is First Time Procurement Has Been Projected from Inside Industry

Opening gun of the intensive recruiting campaign of the Kelly-Springfield WAC Unit will be fired this morning when officers and enlisted personnel of the special WAC detachment sets up shop inside the gates of the local plant, Lt. Lucy E. Shannon, senior WAC recruiting officer, of Baltimore, and officer in charge of the contingent announced last night.

"We had made arrangements," Lt. Shannon said, to disseminate information, administer mental alertness tests, and, when it becomes necessary from the standpoint of large numbers of recruits, to give physical examinations inside the plant, without necessity for any of the young women to lose a minute's time from work."

The special detachment, which arrived yesterday, made a thorough canvass of the local situation, made assignments, and completed plans for the institution of a round-the-clock campaign in which members will be present in the plant twenty-four hours a day to answer questions, distribute literature and advise young women on the opportunities within the corps.

The Kelly-Springfield unit is an innovation to service recruiting inasmuch as it constitutes the first time that procurement has been projected from inside industry.

Assisting Lt. Shannon is Capt. E. Alden Richardson, WAC, executive officer of the General Record WAC Recruiting unit of Philadelphia and a contingent of officers and enlisted personnel from her own organization.

Lt. Praxxythia Coronoe, local WAC Recruiting Officer will appear on the special WAC radio program, "This Woman's Army," from radio station WTBO this morning at 11 o'clock.

WAVE Who Traded Film Contract For Navy Blue Is on Duty Here

"Sweetheart of U.C.L.A." To Interview Applicants for Women's Reserve

Passing up opportunities to become a motion picture star or a Powers model in order to do the navy blue of the Women's Naval Reserve may sound like one of those "once in a lifetime" performances. Yet that is just what Petty Officer Third Class Phyllis Dockery, of Glendale, Calif., who arrived here yesterday afternoon from the Washington WAVE office, did.

From the time she was chosen May Queen in high school at Glendale, where she was born, to when she entered the WAVES and was selected to play the leading role in a WAVE motion picture, blonde Phyllis describes her experiences of the past two years as "just some honors" that came her way.

Assigned to Cumberland for the next three or four weeks, the "Sweetheart of U.C.L.A." Flying Cadets will conduct informal interviews with WAVE applicants here. Being chosen as the owner of that title in June of last year was the first of the honors that came Officer Dockery's way while she was a student at the University of California at Los Angeles.

State WMC Reports Requests Filed by Eleven Companies with Local USES Office

BALTIMORE, Sept. 13 (AP) — The State War Manpower Commission reported today that 6,395 jobs in Maryland war industries were available for the 3,600 men and women who will be furloughed from the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, Cumberland.

WMC officials said that figure was the total of requests filed with the United States Employment Service by eleven companies. That number does not include the hundreds of other jobs open in war plants and other essential activities in the state a WMC spokesman said.

USES Facilities Offered
All firms seeking to employ furloughed Kelly workers have offered the facilities of the USES office in Cumberland.

The reconversion of the Kelly plant from Ordnance manufacture to processing of synthetic rubber will release approximately 2,500 women and 1,100 men beginning next Tuesday if the plant meets its schedules, a WMC official explained.
